BERLIN 66—GOULD 51

Gould put up a game fight last Friday against Berlin managing to take a brief lead early in the third period, but the visitors used two full teams to wear down the hard fighting Huskies. The injury of Biden and the ejection of Murphy on fouls left the locals pretty short-handed. Rolfe also fouled out early in the final stanza. The Mountaineers were hot from the floor and the free throw line. They also were the fastest team to perform here this year.

Agness and Rolfe took the evening's scoring honors with 15 and 14. For Berlin, McArthur with 10 points and Paul Sullivan with 12 points led the attack. Berlin used 10 men who entered the scoring column.

The preliminary proved a real thriller as the visitors won over the Gould J.V.s 32-31.

GOULD 49—NORWAY 39

Gould Academy fell behind in the opening period 17-11, but with Agness leading the way they tied the game up at 24-all at half time. In the third period, the visiting Rams could only score one field goal and two free throws for four points while the Huskies scored 12 to assume a 36-28 advantage. Going into the final period, Gould helped his teammates to cut the margin to five points at one time, but Agness could not be stopped as he scored 10 points in the last period for a grand total of 31 points for the evening. The entire starting line-up for Gould played good ball to keep their Sun - Journal League slate clean with three victories to no defeats.

Thurston and Gullford were outstanding for Norway with 13 and 14 points respectively.

Gould plays the undefeated South Paris team in a double-header at Paris this Friday.

With Fosselt losing 17 points the Gould Jaycees won an easy victory over the visitors, 44-20.

149 Me. Road Deaths in '51

Figures for 1951 reveal that fewer people were killed on Maine streets and highways than during any other year since records were started in 1935. Excepting the travel-restricted war years, 1942 through 1944, the annual toll averaged 185 victims. This past year the final figure was 149.

This represents a remarkable decrease 19.46%. From a numerical standpoint, it means that 36 people, who might have been killed had the average remained at 185, were alive to welcome 1952.

This record was established in spite of a five per cent increase in traffic load during the past year. It was accomplished during a year that saw national motor vehicle fatalities soar to the highest total in the past ten years. The National Safety Council expects the 1951 traffic death toll to add up to approximately 37,500, the fourth highest total of lives lost in motor vehicle accidents in the history of the United States.

What does it mean? Safety officials hope that it is evidence of an active concern on the part of Maine motorists, that it indicates drivers are assuming the responsibility which should be theirs, that the public is giving enforcement agencies that voluntary compliance which is absolutely essential to safe and sane driving.

Seventeen fatalities in December represent a tremendous improvement over the figures for the same month a year ago when 25 persons died in highway accidents.

An analysis of the annual figures shows that, numbered among the one hundred forty-nine victims were: 42 pedestrians, 53 drivers, 45 passengers, 4 bicycle riders, and 5 children killed while sliding. A timely note of warning: all five of these sliding tragedies occurred during the month of January, 1951.

Lt. John DeWinter, Director, Division of Traffic and Safety, Maine State Police.

Committee Decides "Crescent Park School"

The name of Crescent Park School was adopted to identify Bethel's new grade school building on the old "Crescent Grounds" at the meeting of the Parent Teacher Association at the new building Tuesday evening. This name, suggested by Mrs. R. R. Tibbets, together with that of Crescent Street for the highway leading to the school, was chosen by the School Committee and won the cash prize offered by Kimball Ames. The prize was turned over to the Parent Teacher Association by Mrs. Tibbets.

There was a good attendance, considering the poor traveling conditions, at the open house meeting at which Superintendent Donald Christie presided. Mr. Christie called on Elmer Bennett, chairman of the original school survey committee; Paul Thurston, chairman of the building committee; John Carter, representing the selection; Mrs. Olive Head, chairman of the School Committee; and William O. Bailey of the State Department of Education.

Mr. Bennett gave an account of the ground work. Mr. Thurston spoke of the work of the building committee, stating that more than $1,000 remained of the $136,200 available. He said that 46 meetings of the building committee were held, and concluded by turning the plans over to the selectmen, the committee's duties being completed. Mr. Carter accepted the building as completed and called on Mrs. Head as representative of the school committee which now has charge of the building. Mrs. Head commended the building committee for their excellent work and then read the letter which gave the names of the building and street as accepted by the school committee. Mr. Christie then called on Mr. Bailey who brought a message from the State Department of Education.

Refreshments were served by the Parent Teacher Association. Mrs. Tibbets' letter will be of interest:

Bethel, Maine, Oct. 4, 1951
Dear Mr. Christie and other capable men on the Building Committee:

You have done an excellent job in getting for us such a fine and modern school building, you have built for posterity. Citizens are proud and grateful.

Shall we call the handsome building

Crescent Park School

—and then the Playgrounds and Athletic Field that grow around it will already have names.

If the new road is too wide to be Crescent Lane it might be Crescent Road or Crescent Street.

With appreciation, Sincerely,

Pearl Ashby Tibbets

Did you know that about seventy-five years ago a group of local young men had a baseball field in the pasture and the name Crescent Grounds was born. (They wore gray uniforms with red new moons front and back.) The name must have been good to have stuck. Several generations of boys and girls have played on the Crescent Grounds.

WMFA HOLDS JANUARY

MEETING AT HIRAM

MONDAY EVENING

The Western Maine Firemen's Association held their regular monthly meeting at the K of P Hall in East Hiram Monday evening. A baked bean supper preceded the meeting with well-filled tables.

The business meeting was opened at 8:10 by President Bob Blake of Bethel. Reports of the Secretary, Charles Freeman, and the Treasurer, Louis Lamont, were read and accepted.

Secretary Freeman read a letter from Austin H. Williams of the Maine State Forestry Department, wherein he accepted the part of speaker at the Locke Mills-Bethel meeting on Monday, February 11, at Locke Mills.

A suggestion from Wilbur Libby, Buckfield, was that the Secretary compile a list of all available equipment (every town included) and forward it to the main office in South Paris.

Bob Blake and Cliff Denison were appointed to send a letter to the Co. Fire Department, suggesting that they do everything within their power to hold their department to disband the Co. department.

President Blake then turned the meeting over to Louis Lamont, who introduced Rev. Herman Greve. Rev. Greve told of the origin of fire fighting equipment, interspersed with humorous stories.

Twenty towns were represented as follows: Albany 1, Bethel 5, Bridgton 1, Brownfield 2, Bryant Pond 1, Denmark 1, Conway, N. H. 6, Denmark 1, Fryeburg 9, Gardiner 1, Harrison 3, Hiram 9, Houston (Texas) 1, Lovell 13, North Chatham 4, North Fryeburg 4, Norway 4, South Bridgton 9, Sweden 2, Sumner 1. Total—84.

Name Maine 4-H Members, Clubs and Counties for State Honors

TOP RANKING records in the 1951 National 4-H Dairy Achievement, Meat Animal, Leadership, Dairy Foods Demonstration, Health, Recreation-Rural Arts, and Soil-and-Water Conservation programs have brought state honors to ten Maine club members.

A. Dew L. Stevens E. Colby E. Mosher R. Knightly A. Haggood M. Patterson S. Winchell

Scientific practices in dairying, plus teamwork and sportsmanship, have brought statewide recognition to Robert Dew, 20, of Dover-Foxcroft, winner in the 1951 4-H Dairy Achievement program. A graduate of the two-year Dairy Husbandry course at the University of Maine, he now has five dairy animals of his own, on which he has won several awards, including a medal for showmanship. He has had to manage the farm completely since his father became seriously ill. His 17-jewel wrist watch award was provided by Lederle Laboratories.

Outstanding and successful can best describe Leroy Stevens, 16, of Turner, state winner in the 4-H Meat Animal program. His award is a 17-jewel watch. Thos. E. Wilson, Chicago meat packer, has donated the awards in this program for 22 years. Since there was no club in his locality at first, his guidance came from a sister, who had previously carried a 4-H Beef project. He received the Reserve Champion award at the Eastern States' Exhibit.

Outstanding leadership abilities and an excellent job in 4-H Club and community work won state honors for Eugene Mosher, 20, Farmington, and Elsie Colby, 16, Bucksport, in the 4-H Leadership program.

Eugene served his club as president and assistant leader during ten years in club work. He has also been president of the County 4-H Council and has served on many planning committees. Eugene's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Mosher, are the local leaders.

Elsie has been a 4-H'er for seven years and has served as secretary and assistant leader of her club and president of the County 4-H Council. She has given 11 radio talks and many others on 4-H Club work. She was state winner in health last year and received a trip to Chicago.

The 17-jewel wrist watch award was presented to each of these young people by Edward Foss Wilson, president of Wilson and Co., Chicago.

Showing others how to use dairy products to make new and appetizing dishes, won top honors in the 4-H Dairy Foods Demonstration program for Marion Patterson, 16, of Augusta, and the team of Amy Haggood, 16, and Ruth Knightly, 15, of South Paris. Giving demonstrations not only perfected their knowledge, but the girls also developed poise and self-confidence through speaking before community groups.

Marion's prize-winning demonstration was "The Milky Way." The team demonstrated "Dry Milk Tricks." A wrist watch award was presented to each of these 4-H'ers by the Carnation Company.

Acclaimed 4-H Health Improvement winner in Maine for 1951, Sylvia Winchell, 18, of East Lebanon, received a trip to the 1951 National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago as guest of the Kellogg Co., of Battle Creek, Sylvia, a winner of the Danforth Foundation Achievement award, has as her guides to good health, daily baths, balanced diet, proper care of the teeth and eyes, and sufficient sleep. She has been granted a four-year scholarship in home economics at Masson College.

In addition, the Progressive Boys and Girls 4-H Club of Androscoggin-Sagadahoc county, Clover 4-H Club of Hancock county, and Ready Workers 4-H Club of Oxford county each receive a $20 cash award for carrying on the best health program based on individual and group achievements in 1951. The cash awards must be used for health education.

The control of water and soil erosion is of vital importance to Richard Shibles, 17, of Thorndike. Judged state winner of the 17-jewel wrist watch award in the 4-H Soil and Water Conservation program, Richard's largest project was the cultivation of a 20-acre pasture, which was difficult because of the tremendous number of rocks which required him to plow and harrow several times. Contour planting, strip cropping and the planting of potatoes, corn and hay have prevented water erosion and drainage problems. Firestone is the donor of awards in this program.

In the 1951 National 4-H Recreation and Rural Arts program, Cumberland, Hancock and Penobscot counties each receive a $25 cash award provided by the United States Rubber Company for naming a blue award of 4-H Clubs. The awards are to be used for the purchase of recreational equipment.

All of these programs are conducted under the direction of the Cooperative Extension Service.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"I wish Freddie was here—he can whistle."

NO MATTER HOW YOU SAY IT, SPEED KILLS

Any individual who undertakes to guide the destiny of a motor vehicle, through the intricate maze of traffic, and under the extremely hazardous surface conditions caused by precipitation and fluctuating temperatures, should be acutely aware of the fact that a marked reduction in the velocity of the vehicle is mandatory if one is to avoid the serious consequences which eventually, all too frequently, when an unforeseen contingency necessitates an abrupt cessation of the forward motion of the above-mentioned vehicle.

In other words, Buster, take it easy! It's tough enough to stop, even at low speed. If you are really rolling, your chances aren't worth a nickel when you try to stop on any dime.

The Word With Power

WORDS have great influence on our lives. They express thought, and when thought is in agreement with God, divine Mind, they express the power of God.

A Roman military officer came to Jesus and besought him to heal his servant. He knew what it was to give a word of command and to have it carried out. He said to Jesus (Matthew 8:8), "Speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed." Jesus spoke the word, and the servant was immediately restored to health. Referring to the nature of his words, which always expressed his understanding of the unity of God and man, Jesus once said (John 6:63), "The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life."

The Biblical allegory of the talking serpent in the garden of Eden illustrates the abuse of speech. The figure of the talking serpent represents a lie, and a liar. The false talker's words, devoid of any healing purpose, if listened to, breed discontent and discord. Jesus taught his followers to discriminate between words of truth and insinuations of error. He instructed them in the truth of the omnipresence of God, good, and the incorporeal nature of the Christ, revealing man as God's spiritual image and reflection. He opened their thought to spiritual understanding. He taught them not to listen to those who would proclaim the Christ, the Saviour of mankind, to be in this or that particular place. Omnipresent good precludes limitation of good to any one locality, period, or person.

In the textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, writes (p. 332): "Christ is the true idea voicing good, the divine message from God to men speaking to the human consciousness. The Christ is incorporeal, spiritual—yes, the divine image and likeness, dispelling the illusions of the senses."

Words that speak to the human consciousness of God and His idea are imbued with healing, for they enlighten us regarding man's true being and dispel the illusions, the lies manifest as sin, sickness, disease, and death. All the good to be done in the world today, all that means the genuine healing of nations and individuals, will be successfully achieved as the law of God is spiritually understood and obeyed in human affairs. . . .

Suggestions that we lack something good that is essential to our well-being, or that something harmful and unnecessary is hampering us, are illusions, without power. The Christ-idea, the incorporeal Saviour, is today, as always, speaking to the human consciousness, dispelling its illusions and revealing man's perfect selfhood as the son of God.—The Christian Science Monitor.

WE HOPE by the time this is published that the four American airmen kidnapped by the government of Hungary, will be at home with their families. We also hope, for the sake of one last faint iota of respect which some human may still retain for the creatures who have enslaved the Hungarian people, that they will have returned our airplane without stealing the furnishings.

We hope that by the time the fliers have returned, our government will have decided how to retaliate; and we hope the retaliation is a bridling with sharp steel teeth, it is going to be a tough job to work out a plan to pay the bandits off without hastening the eventual clash between decency and Communism; but we believe the state department must realize that the American people are beginning—at long last—to resent the constant humbling of their pride.

There are without doubt strong reasons for continuing diplomatic relations with the governments of the Communist world; but surely we could dispense with one or two of them without upsetting the diplomatic apparatus. Why can't we order every American out of Hungary and then break off relations? It isn't decent for a respectable nation to recognize the government which has enslaved Hungary. And it might even be an encouragement to the fine people of that nation if the United States refused to continue to deal with their masters.

It is axiomatic that to appease a bully is merely to incite him to greater acts of aggression. The western world has been tempting the Red bullies ever since Chamberlain initiated this tactic with Hitler. Whenever we have stood up like men and resisted, we have slugged down the enemy's advance. Maybe we should begin to practice aggression. Maybe a few advances on our part would put "the fear" in those who are bullying the white man's part of the world.

SUNDAY SERMON

CHARITY is a bedrock. Not a thing of moods or gut feelings. The man who comes home after doing some good deed for a stranger might be grouchy with his wife, or lose his temper with his children. These lapses may not be too serious; but they suggest, at the very least, that he lacks the quality of soul which genuine charity involves.

Charity is not simply being generous or helpful toward others. Charity is also patience and forbearance. It is humility and understanding. It is love for God expressed in love of neighbor. Charity is identifying oneself with others in their needs and difficulties, whether these be physical, emotional or spiritual.

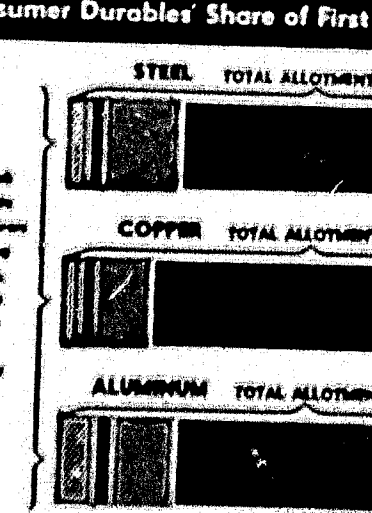

What makes charity a supreme virtue is that it combines the love of God and neighbor. Charity is universal, admitting of no exceptions. It encompasses enemy as well as friend, poor as well as rich. It takes no stock of differences of race, creed, or social or cultural background. The man of charity sees in every other human being a creature as truly God-made as he is himself.

Charity brings hope and grace to life. It is the secret weapon through which alone the world may expect to win a genuine and enduring peace.

In these days of east-west tensions, of mounting international suspicions and fears, the greatest need is for a rededication to the spirit of brotherhood—this is but another name for charity—between men and nations. Hate, which is the destruction of charity, spells eventual catastrophe.

Say you saw it in THE CITIZEN.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY-USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Thursday, January 17

Through him (Christ) we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father. (Ephesians 2:18.) Read Ephesians 2:1-10.

ABOU ISMAEL is a converted young man. He stands as a faithful witness to his Lord. Lately he went to work with an Armenian and his two children. The first work of Ismael was to tell them his religious experience. Abou Ismael wondered very much that they are only Christians in name and do not even carry with them a New Testament. The other day he bought New Testaments from me to give to those friends.

They are now awakened by seeing his zeal. Abou Ismael prays with them. He says he does not understand their language in prayer, but adds, "I feel that we are under the influence of one unseen Power, and have already become brothers. We are standing before the heavenly Father, through Christ."

How great the work of Christ, who hurdles all obstacles of race, culture, and language and unites us all under the shadow of His wings. This experience is not one of old, but belongs to our present day as well.

Prayer

We thank Thee, our heavenly Father, that in Jesus Christ Thou gatherest Thy children and united them by Thy spirit. Grant that each day this spiritual fellowship may be a reality for us. In Jesus' name we ask it. Amen.

Thought For The Day

Our Christian fellowship is the work of the Holy Spirit.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

Babylon, N. Y., Eagle: "It may be that the administration looks upon the war in Korea, with its 100,000 American casualties, and 8,000 Americans murdered, as a triumph in foreign policy, but it will be hard to convince the American people that this is true."

Lewistown, Pa., Sentinel: "The American people is vitally concerned over the low ethical standard indicated by the scandals in the RFC, the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Department of Justice. We do not feel that it takes an ethics professor or a student of the Bible to know that a acceptance by an official of gifts for special favors is wrong, that using a government position to further his own private financial interest or his business interest or his friends' or campaign contributors' interest is wrong."

Oconto Falls, Wis., Herald: "A talk given over the radio recently contained the statement that graft and greed are not to be found in one political party only. This is true but when one party is in power for a longer than usual period, naturally, they also accumulate more of this type of person."

Chariton, Minn., Independent: "No matter what the age of a man, woman or child the drama of Christmas thrills the being, the words 'Merry Christmas' always carry hope for the days to come, and because of this the goodness of communism can never win."

Morrison, Ill., News: "Horrible to contemplate, isn't it, that America is running, not walking, toward a totalitarian dictatorship? So what are we who cherish our freedom going to do about it? For one thing, we can lend encouragement to those Congressmen who valiantly are fighting this centralization of power in the hands of the bureaucrats in Washington."

WHEN YOU'RE buttering this slice of bread, it's much easier to butter the bread before it's sliced from the loaf. Make certain the butter used is softened and creamed slightly before spreading.

If a recipe calls for browned butter, melt the butter in a saucepan over a low flame in a moderate even or place in a skillet. Stir frequently to prevent burning. Soft butter is easily grated by using a cheese grater which is fine a best grated by rubbing over a grater or a sifter.

After the explosion of an atomic bomb, the result of the blast itself. Therefore, getting ready to fight fires is a big part of the civil defense job.

Atomic bombing would cause great fires in the area of the burst, and start hundreds of small fires in surrounding areas. With the regular fire fighting companies fully occupied by the main fires, people would have to put out these smaller fires on the spot. If they live in target areas they must know how to fight fires at home or at work.

At least one member of your family should be trained in the use of basic fire fighting tools and methods. Because women are at home much of the time, they are urged to learn how to put out fires in case of emergency. Teaching of householders to fight fires will be carried out by instructors trained by their local fire departments. Auxiliary or reserve firemen will be recruited to back up the regular companies. These volunteers will be trained by local fire companies, using regular equipment.

Your Warden or your local civil defense headquarters will tell you where to volunteer for such training.

Traffic A Big Problem

The biggest police problem in event of enemy attack, would be the control of traffic. Another big problem would be maintaining law and order. These are the most important of the duties which civil defense volunteers would help perform under the Police Service.

Auxiliary police, which many communities now have to supplement regular police forces in handling parades and crowds on special occasions, will also be

THE OLD MAN at listening. A knock at night meant only road agent! Deceit looked at the gate.

There was a porch. Heavy boots his wife. "Road agent!" Her body jerked. Her body jerked.

The rough element hand in Montana. Many innocent people murdered for a few of them knew that brick in the heart! gold dust. It represents of all their farm past season.

While others panned for gold, the old man farmed. They had too, selling wheat, eggs and meat to the mine. "We better get up softly," "I don't want me I was murdered!" "And I don't want that road agent caught night clothes. I was I will die the name!" back the feather bed squirm into her clothes. The old man creaked and pulled his pants under which he hid a gun. He padded across the window. It was dark at the porch but a little yard. He could see the gate.

A KNOCK ON THE DOOR AT NIGHT

BY VIRGINIA W. STROBLE

THE OLD MAN awoke and lay listening. A knock on the door at night meant only one thing—road agents! Decent people huddled at the gate.

There was tromping on the porch. Heavy boots! He nudged his wife. "Road agents!" he whispered. Her body jerked and she sat up.

The rough element had the upper hand in Montana Territory, and many innocent people were being murdered for a few dollars. Both of them knew that under a loose brick in the hearth lay a poke of gold dust. It represented the sale of all their farm produce for the past season.

While others panned the streams for gold, the old couple had been farming. They had done right well too, selling wheat, eggs, milk, hay and meat to the miners.

"We better get up," he said softly. "I don't want it said of me I was murdered in bed."

"And I don't want it said of me that road agents caught me in my night clothes. I was born a lady. I will die the same." Ma threw back the feather bed and began to squirm into her clothes.

The old man creaked out of bed and pulled his pants over the long underwear in which he had slept. He padded across the floor to the window. It was dark as a cave on the porch but a little lighter in the yard. He could see a horse near the gate.

Dressed, the old lady joined her husband at the window. A porch ran the width of the cabin, Missouri fashion. The old lady had insisted on it. She never had time to sit on it, but a porch stood for a way of life she had left behind.

On the far end of the porch there was pounding and splintering of wood. Could the road agents be taking up the floor, looking for a cache?

When the waiting became unbearable, the old man thrust his wife through the door with the words, "You talk them out of it." The old lady's glib tongue had talked them out of difficulties before. Like the time she caught the immigrants stealing a pig. And the time the Indians wanted the coffee grinder.

But road agents! They were not famous for listening. Still her husband had faith in her. She would try. Perhaps she could turn the trick. As he peeped through the window he could see her stiffen.

Now he could see a dark mass covered in the corner. "Come out of there," she called in a voice that expected to be obeyed. Only stonping answered. Such impertinence was too much for Ma's dignity. She lifted her broom and brought it down with a tremendous whack. With a snort the dark object lunged forward and ambled away. With weak relief they both recognized old Bessie, their cherished cow.

"Well," exclaimed the old lady in a tone plainly heard inside the window, "you certainly had Pa cowed."

A PEEK AT THE STARS

BY LEN CONNELLY

THE LOS ANGELES chamber of commerce currently is reflecting the new and terrific importance of television . . . The C. C. is always hoping for "typical" California weather for the annual Rose Bowl festivities, but this year, because of first use of the nationwide TV relay, the chamber realizes that TV can be the best salesman in "selling" tourists . . . Bad weather for the Rose parade and Stanford-Illinois game would give easterners an eyeful on TV that would drop California's trade and send tourists scurrying for Florida . . . When such a thing is possible, there is no doubt about it—television has arrived.

Vine Street traffic stopper: Jimmy Durante and partner Eddie Jackson heading for NBC after lunch—a crowd of autograph fans in front of them and a crowd of song pluggers in their wake . . .

Ginger Rogers retains the right to veto objectionable advertising in her upcoming TV series . . . Hope she also reserves the right to veto objectionable material given her by her writers . . . That, in our opinion, is more important . . .

Radio loses Comedians Dave Willard and Cliff Arquette and the nation's TV audience gained "Dave and Charlie."

PLATTER CHATTER

CAPTOL:—Bob Crosby's latest waxing is "Savoy Blues," a real-gone number that Master Bobby shoots the works on . . . Back has "Cryin' Shame" with duet by Crosby and Jeanne Gayle . . .

Dean Martin comes up with a disc introducing two songs from his, and Jerry Lewis' latest piz, "Sailor Beware" . . . Songs, delivered in the best Martin tradition, are "Never Before" backed by "Hold Me, Hold Me" is given a fine send-off by wonderful Kay Starr . . . "So Help Me" is on the flip.

COLUMBIA—Latest in this company's "Golden Era Series" is Jack Benny's album of songs covering nostalgic years in the world of music . . . Jack's great band and his expressive troupe are heard in such numbers as "Gay Rhapsody," "The Night in Blue," two versions of the eternal favorite "Star Dust," "It's on My Mind," "Colleen Baggie Woogie" and "I Walk Alone."

OXFORD COUNTY TO HOLD MONTHLY POULTRY MEETINGS

South Paris Fire Hall will be the scene of the first monthly meeting of Oxford Poultrymen.

Poultry is definitely on the increase in the county with several new broilers and laying houses in the planning stage or actually being built. Some new broiler plants are already in operation.

Both new and long established poultrymen have problems and new ways of combating poultry problems are being advanced all the time. To do the best job we must keep up to date on new methods.

A monthly gathering to hear outstanding speakers on all phases of poultry production is one way to keep abreast of changing methods.

Youngster Intends to Boss Railroad

NINE-YEAR-OLD George Edgar of Wappingers Falls, N.Y., has taken the first step along his announced path to the presidency of the Erie railroad.

He became part-owner of the railroad when he received a share of stock paid for, in the main, out of his own earnings. He qualified to receive the first earnings on his investment with the $1.25 quarterly dividend.

He became the newest and probably the youngest shareholder of record, took a brief trip of inspection in the property he partly owns and from the cab of a diesel locomotive, no less, and announced to the world that he would one day own the railroad.

Not only did George get a share of stock and a thrilling ride, but he won the approval of a battery of newsmen, news reel camera men and still photographers with his pose and considered answers. The photographers kept him posing for an hour and a half after the board meeting.

The deal started when young George Samuel Edgar, a handsome youngster who knows what he wants, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Edgar, wrote to Paul W. Johnston, president of the railroad: "I have saved nearly $11.25. I would like to buy a share of stock. I would like to know what the price of it is—cheap price, I couldn't afford it if it is very expensive."

President Johnston took no exception. He wrote George, praising his approval of the American system and his choice of investment and said he would make up the difference between the $11.25 George had saved and the price of a share of stock. He further invited George to receive his share of stock at the December meeting of the board of directors and later to take a ride in the cab of a diesel.

George's father, who with Mrs. Edgar accompanied George on his momentous trip, advised his son he should be thinking of what to say when Mr. Johnston gave him the share of stock.

"Oh, I'll think of something," the imperturbable young financier told his dad.

He did. Asked by newsmen what he intended to do with his share of stock, George replied:

"Keep it. Now I've got one share, I'm going to save all my money and buy more. I'm going to own the railroad some day."

Asked how he got the $11.25 to start the purchase, George said: "Helped my father rake leaves and my mommy wash dishes."

"When you get to be boss of the railroad, are you going to give passes to your friends?" George was asked.

"Yes, but they'll have to pay for them," said George.

Looks like the railroad will do all right when George Samuel Edgar gets to be the head man.

Rufus Rice, Arrol Brown, Roger Potter and Robert McCrea are attending a lumbermen's meeting in Bridgeport, Conn.
